

March 14, 2020

Like everyone in Canada and around the world, Camp Misquah has been monitoring COVID-19 and the evolving advice of public health officials. Our top priority, as always, remains the health and safety of our campers, their loved ones, volunteers, staff and the community.

With 110 days away from the start of camp, we are working hard to ensure a super Misquah Summer 2020 and currently have no plans to cancel camp for this summer. Applications are still being accepted, and we still have spots remaining in most sessions! We would encourage you to apply as this helps with your summer planning and ours.

We will continue to monitor public health advice. Should the current risk level change in such a way that we would consider cancelling, we will advise all campers, their loved ones and the community-at-large and refund any fees paid.

The Misquah Moose is following the advice from the Public Health Agency of Canada and Ottawa Public Health and hopes you are too! Our camp community is special because of the way we care deeply for everyone, not only during the summer but all year round. We hope everyone is staying safe, following good health habits and practicing compassion and kindness during this time.

We will update you as we move closer to summer.
